

12 Dec., 1953.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury (301) has settled down very well indeed. His subject reports are most gratifying, and he brings to all his undertakings a pleasing earnestness which is all too rare.

He has been regular in his conduct and tidy in his habits, and has made excellent use of the facilities of the Art School and the Library in his spare time.

His attainment of a 'good' standard in trials was a fitting end to a very satisfactory term.

Yours sincerely,

R. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury (301) has done very good work this term in all subjects. He has also spent much time in the Art School and has made sensible use of the facilities of the Modelling club.

He has also read a great deal, and has by no means confined his reading to books from the junior fiction shelves — a good sign.

His conduct has been very good.

Yours sincerely,

R. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury (301) continues to work steadily and well. He has made good progress in all school subjects.

He has done quite well at cricket, though not quite so well as had been expected.

He spends quite a lot of time in the Radio Club and has nearly completed his wireless set. He has also made good use of the Workshop and has produced some excellent oil-paintings in the Art School. He has read widely and shows an adult taste for literature.

I was very pleased to hear that he has passed his music exam.

His behaviour continues to be good.

Yours sincerely,
R. H. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury (301) has done another good term's work and shows great industry in all he does.

Though he has not done so well at rugby, he ran very well in the inter-house cross-country race.

His conduct generally has been good, though he has been somewhat unruly in the bedroom and has been several times on the praefects' list. I am surprised at this, because he is usually well-behaved and co-operative.

He has made good use of his spare time, reading sensible books and making model aircraft.

Yours sincerely

R. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Henry has again done a very good term's work and continues to make sound progress.

He has spent much of his spare time at oil-painting, and has read a large number of well-chosen books.

His conduct continues to be good.

Yours sincerely,

R. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury has worked very well, as usual, and kept up his high standard of achievement, except in Technical Drawing and French.

He has done quite well at athletics and reached an all-round bronze standard. He has also read a large number of books.

Though still inclined to be late, he has been well-behaved and generally co-operative in his House.

Yours sincerely,

R. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury has worked very well, as usual, and achieved good results, though he is now finding the work rather more difficult than in the past. In spite of his wide reading, his English is not as good as it might be, and he needs to think very carefully about the way in which he expresses himself.

His behaviour has been very good, as always.

Yours sincerely,

R. H. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury has continued to work conscientiously, though his progress in some subjects is slow because of the complexity of the work at G.C.E. level. He will need to try harder at mathematics, and his English is not so good as I had hoped it would be at this stage. Though he continues to read quite widely and sensibly, his spelling shows little improvement.

He works well as lab. assistant and teaches a recorder group. He continues to be very co-operative generally.

Yours sincerely,

R. White.

Dear Headmaster,

Anthony de Fleury has spent a good last term, working conscientiously, as always, with on the whole quite satisfactory results.

He has not read as widely as formerly, but that is quite understandable. His conduct has been good.

Yours sincerely,

R. J. White.
